COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.—Monday, before the Re-corder, Judges Lynch and Noah, and Aldermen Nichols and Smith

Smith

Mr. J. B. La Forge, acting as District Attorney, called all the cases on the calendar, a score or paore, and as wimesses appearing in behalf of the prosecution in either, no trial could be had, and the Jury were discharged for the day.

The following recognizances were forfeited, viz.: Thomas B. Hart, indicted for petit larceny, charged with stealing ten pocket bibles and thriteen numbers of a pamphiet entirled. The Mysterious Marriage; James B. Hart, indicted for an assault and battery on Pakser; James Habbell, assault and battery on Pakser; James Habbell, assault and battery on Pakser; James Hubbell, assault and battery on Pakser; James Hubbell, assault and battery on David Ten Eyck, for non-attendance to answer.

The Recorder remarked to the acting District Attorney that the continued non-attendance of the witnesses on the part of the people in Court to testify, which had been the case for several days during the present term, was a crying evil that must be redressed. It interrupted the progress of the business of the Court, which could not proceed without them, and an efficient remedy must be applied to cure the growing evil.

The affidavits of the officers serving the subpoensa must be taken against the defaulting witnesses by the District Attorney, and proceedings instituted against them for their defaults. The Court was not able to get along with their business under this state of things, and it was their intention to take the most efficient measures to correct the evil that existed.

The Court then adjourned.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER — Before Judge Edwards and Aldermen Beason and Purdy.

The District Attorney appeared in Court with his witnesses, ready to proceed with the trial of Exra White for murder, the coursel for the accused being also ready. In consequence, however, of the terms of office of the Aldermen on the bench expirition. The thick this day is a subject to the course. ing on Tuesday, (this day) at 12 s crock, a difficulty was inter-posed in the way of proceeding; and, to prevent any question arising hereafter in regard to the Court being correctly and law fully constituted. His Honor Judge Edwards declated making any order in the case until the newly elected Aldermen should be sworn into office, and the Court thereupon adjourned to 1 o'clock this day.

Attracted by curiosity, a vast crowd was collected, which rendered ingress to and egress from the Court Room almost impos-

CORONER's OFFICE.—In the case of the sailor who fell eff the dock into the river at the foot of Governeur-street on Sunday morning and was drowned, as mentioned in our paper of resterday, the following additional particulars were elicited by the Corener's Inquest. The name of the doceased, who was a militato, it appeared, was Benjamin Udell, aged about 37, a native of Long Island. He was a hand on board the sloop Elias Hicks, German, master, and was intemperate in his habita. He was inebriated on Senday morating as early as 7 o'clock, when he took his seat on the edge of the dock in company with a man named John Jamisen, over whose legs the deceased placed his feet in a reckless manner. He was cartioned to take care or he would full in, but replied "Never mind," and a few minutes, pitched heaklong off the wharf, striking his head against the sloop to which he belonged, and was then precipitated into the water and drowned. Efforts were made to rescue him, but in vain, and his body was not recovered until late on Sunday at termoon. Verdict of the Jury, that he came to his seath by accidental drowning. eldental drawning.

THE DEATH OF JASPER.

A HISTORICAL BALLAD ... BY HON. R. M. CHARLTON. 'T was amistst a scene of blood, On a bright autumnal day, When misfortune like a flood

Swept our fairest hopes away;
'T was on Savannah's plain,
On the spot we love so well,
Assidst heaps of gallant slain, That the daring Jaspen fell.

He had beene him in the fight Like a soldier in his prime, Like a bold and stalwart knight Of the glorious olden time;

And unformed by sabre blow, And untouched by leaden ball, He had battled with the for 'Till he heard the trumpet's call.

But he turned him at the sound, For he knew the strife was o'er-That in vain on Freedom's ground hind her children shed their gore;

So he slowly turned away With the remnant of the band, Had escaped the forman's hand.

But his Banner caught his eye As it trailed upon the dust, And he saw his comrade die

Ere he yielded up his trust; To the rescue!" loud he cried To the rescue, gallant men!

And he dashed into the tide Of the battle stream again

O'er its field of broidered gold, And the blood of friends and foes

Stained alike its silken fold; But, unheeding wound and blow, He has snatched it midst the strife,

But its ransom is his life.

To my father take my sword,"

Thus the dying hero said, Tell him that my latest word Was a blessing on his head; That when Death had sezzed my frame

And uplifted was his dart, That I ne'er forgot the name That was dearest to my heart.

"Tell her whose favor gave This fair Basner to our band, That I died its folds to save From the foe's polluting hand;

And let all my comrades hear, When my form lies cold in death, That their friend remained sincere To his last, expiring breath. It was thus that Jaspen fell, Neath thas bright autumnal. Has a stone been reared to tell Where he laid him down to die? To the rescue, spirits bold! To the rescue, gallant men! All his daring deeds again!

AN INTERESTING CONFAB.-We once saw a country boy standing opposite his father's barn, very particularly engaged in trying to insult the echo of his own voice, as follows: Boy. Hallo, old snizer ' what d' ye think of the weather

Boy. Yes, the weather-is it going to rain?

Echo. Going to rain.

Boy. I thought so. How 's your ma? Eche. Your ma?

Boy. No, not my ma, but your ma? Echo. Your ma?

Boy. I guess you 're deaft sha' n't I speak louder? Speak louder. Boy. Well, then: a hog is a hog, and so are you!

Echo. So are you! Echo. So am I.

"There, darn it!" said the boy, turning for home, " quits now. I know'd I'd ketch him in the end."

Greek -Nothing could kindle the fancy of this composer out a visit to a green meadow. His Dorothy must perferce have her piano lagged thither, and a bottle of sparkling hampagne be placed at his side; and thus, warmed by the louble glow of the sun and his favorite wine, he poured forth home of the most brilliant of his inspirations. How wofully then have some of the writers of his life been mistaken. In-spired by Iphigenia, forsooth; nonsense, it was by the per umes of a fresh-made haycock.

THIS IS PRINCIPALLY an Egyptian Me livine, introduced by Dactor Segur in this form. It is a fact important to be understood, in estimating happines, as well as health, that in the present state of society a large portion of our sufferings, both body and mind, are of Dyspeptic character and origin.

When, from indigestion and other causes, nourishment in the system becomes deficient, and vital energy is reduced to a point where its economy is disturbed by languad or unnatural action, dayspeptic symptotas begin to be perceptible in restlessness without pain, and pain without apparent cause; and requiring aid reaching beyond the effect to the original cause.
